Engineering Orientation Day 2024

The College of Engineering at Al Ain University (Abu Dhabi and Al Ain campuses) organized an orientation day to welcome new undergraduate engineering students.

The Orientation event introduced new students to the various facilities and services provided at both the university and college levels, by highlighting how to calculate their GPAs, the university's grading system, engineering programs' study plans, and a tour of the university's facilities including the library, e-services, clubs, classrooms, and labs

The students were familiarized with the academic programs and university life and had the chance to bridge a communication channel with the college's deputy dean, programs directors, and faculty members.
